Pegasus Class Newsletter End of Term 5

Dear Parents and Carers,

And yet another term has whizzed by! Our topic of 'Reduce, reuse, recycle' led us to look more carefully at items we consume and what happens to them once we have put them into the refuse bin. The children created posters to raise our awareness for recycling and created collages linked to this.

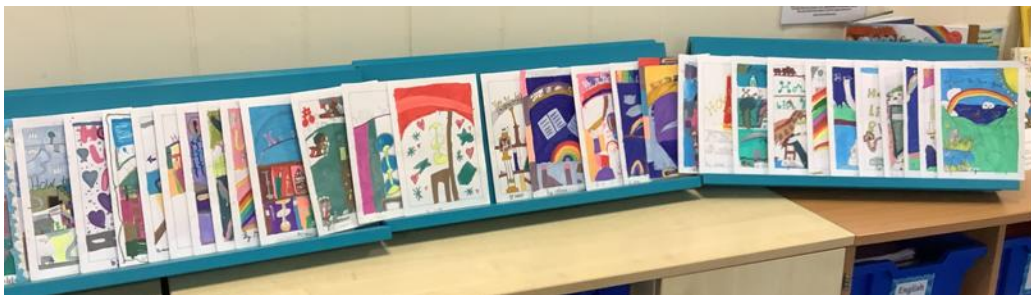

John Dyer, a contemporary environmental artist from Cornwall, inspired our colourful artwork. The children added aspects in their work about endangered animals and landscapes to produce an amazing array of impressive paintings.

In science we learned about the different places our food comes from. The best part was tasting a variety of food with wide-ranging flavours.

The children really shone in their learning in English and have made me very proud!

We shared the book 'How to live forever' by Colin Thompson, sparking off an interesting discussion of pros and cons. The engaging artwork in the book grabbed our attention, continuously searching and discovering new things. When the children wrote their own prequel to it, we made good use of the acrylic pens we had used in art to create catchy front-covers. We continue to enjoy other books by Colin Thompson - such a great discovery!

In RE we explored Hinduism and learned different stories from it, such as the Hindu Creation story, The Birth of Krishna and The Story of Rama and Sita. This term certainly provided a lot of diverse learning.

Next term we will explore the local area, learn about life on the canals and visit the Kennet and Avon Canal Museum. There will be lots of opportunities for stories, art and history!

We wish you a relaxing half term and look forward to seeing you for the final hurdle of term 6!
